STREAKED WALTER

Cold Surfaces Alverse Colds Mars Dank Than After Onde.

The reason that lash and walls become strenged in explana John Aitken, in Nature, as due to the tendency of hot air to deposit its dust on cold surfaces, and the celder the surface the weaker the power of zesistance. So where the laths probed the plaster from the cold outside the plaster receives less deposit of dust then where it is between the daths.

Wherever a hot steam or water pipe comes through a wall a verticulation of dust may be seen above 15, due to the hot air driving the dust against the cold wail. Rooms that are heated by open grates are much less dimity than those heated by radiators because in warmer than the air, fittedals the particles of dust instead of catching them, while in the latter the air heats the furniture and in so doing deposits its dust on it.

Rooms lighted by electricity keep clean longer than those heated by gas simply because the light is almost cold. Mr. Aitken sums it up as follows: "Any surface hotter than the air keeps

A woman newly rich was invited to an aristocratic dinner party. During the course of fowl and saind this woman noticed with dismay a fat, furry caterpillar on her topmost leaf of lettuce. Glancing up, she met her aristoeratic hostess' eye. The hostess, too, plored the guest to save the dinner from catastrophe. The guest gave her hostess a reassuring smile. Then she doubled a lettuce leaf around the caterpillar and swallowed it calmly. The look of awe and gratitude that her hostess gave her was an assurance that her footing in society was at last firmly established.

"Did you think," said Mrs. Newlyrich to her daughter afterward, "that I'd lose a chance of establishing the family socially for a little thing like a
